(Special Correspondence Associated Press.) London, Sept. 22.—General Nelson A. Miles, Mrs. Miles and Aide De Camp Maus, sailed for the United States on the American line steamer St. Louis today. The commander of the army has been in Europe since May on his tour of military observation and has inspected everything of military interest, from the armies of the great powers in field action down to "balloons and blaycles," as he remarked. He has looked over fornance works of all classes and in the intervals of work has written three reports to the government, covering different features of European militarism. pliances and methods of war. After his return he will, with the assistance of Captain Maus, prepare another and more comprehensive report in which will be embodied recommendations for the improvement of the United

"No one realized at that time that Greece had assumed hostilities when she was wholly unprepared for war; nor did any one anticipate that lize a great army of 600,000 men. When arrived at Constantinople an armistice had been declared and war was practically all over, although the armies have remained in hostile attitudes and it has taken three months to agree upon the conditions of peace for a war that had been fought in a few weeks. But as my mission only partially concerned that war and as the president and secretary of war had authorized me to visit such countries as I might think advisable for purposes of military observation, I continued my journey, looking over all the principal armies of Europe, many of the most important military establishm nis, the principal gun factories and constructed from the most minute small calibre projectiles to the heaviest armor
